

Closure

by Paul Turner © 1997

Did we kiss
before letting out to common day?

You went off to the call,
would-be customers, fellow travelers.

I kicked the tires of easy breathing,
called your office,
got your outgoing words—

Kissed your baroque pearls.